

Permit Required Confined Space Work, Respirator Use & LOTO Training Class

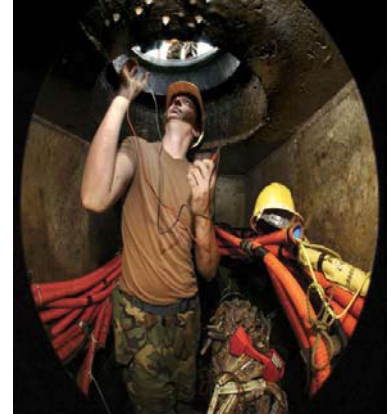

Tuesday, May 22, 2012

The purpose of this class: About 1.6 million American workers enter confined spaces and far too many of them die every year. The OSHA standard 29 CFR 1910.146-developed to protect those works from possible engulfment and from toxic, explosive, or asphyxiating atmospheres-focuses on areas with immediate health or safety risks. These are the so-called permit-required confined spaces. Many workplaces contain areas that are considered to be "permit-required confined spaces" and the employees who deal with these spaces need additional training to work safely in them. This class is a general overview for those persons who may be dealing with permit-required confined spaces. It will cover such topics as:

Topics Covered but not limited to:

1. Introduction & Definitions
2. Atmospheric Testing
3. Ventilation & other controls
4. Respirators, Programs & Fit-testing
5. Specialty Work, (i.e. hot work, lockout/tagout)
